

TARGET

SORRY SEARCHLIGHT, WE HAVEN'T GONE AWAY!

Dear Colleague,

You have no doubt heard the Searchlight inspired rumour that the Searchlight Victims Support Group and it's publication "Target", has ceased to exist. This is simply not true!

We were badly effected by the death, after a short illness, of our Director-General, and rather than impose on his grieving family, we decided to wait for a respectable period before reclaiming important documents necessary to continue our work. This has now been achieved!

Sadly, even in death, we cannot reveal the identity of our late colleague, for fear that his elderly widow would be harassed by Searchlight's "Stormtroopers" from the Anti-Fascist movement.

We will complete the task that so concerned our late colleague, and thanks to a small legacy from his family, we have now managed to purchase some second hand computer equipment to assist us in this.

Searchlight Changes.

Searchlight analysts will have noted some subtle changes since we began our campaign of "exposure" of their supporters. It is now unusual for Searchlight to print the full addresses of Nationalists. Instead, the tactic is to provide enough clues for any idiot to trace the information themselves! A source on the left has advised us that Searchlight still provides full addresses to it's "stormtroopers", but more discreetly. We could do the same!

Another change in tactics has been to enlist the help of "professional pickets" from the SWP and their puppets in the Anti-Nazi League to picket Nationalists workplaces. With a large number of SWP/ANL members working in education and public services, this tactic could backfire against them.

Be Warned!

Finally, the most disturbing trend inspired by Searchlight, is the distribution of small posters carrying photographs and sometimes home addresses of Nationalists normally with the words "this man is a Nazi". These are clearly intended to incite harassment and even violence against the subject and are probably illegal. If seen, hand a copy to the police, and send a copy to us. We too have access to friendly printers!

More Dirty Tricks.

Searchlight has always fiercely defended its self-opinionated view that they alone are the leading Anti-Nationalist researchers in Britain, primarily because of the vast amounts of money certain members of their key members earn as "sources" for newspapers or as media "advisors". Certainly, large houses in exclusive areas don't come by working on a building site! Any prospective "Independent Researchers" are viewed as competition, and therefore a threat to the potential earnings of Searchlight staff.

Such potential competitors are discouraged initially by Searchlight attempting to destroy their credibility. If this fails, the "Independent" often finds his home "burgled" and his files stolen. Searchlights admitted close relationship with what it terms, "the State Security Services", could explain the expertise used in such actions, although we must remember that Searchlight has similar expertise and experience within its own ranks.

If all else fails, the Searchlight goes on to the attack with its most devastating weapon, "the smear and harassment gambit".

The most recent example of this tactic in use has been directed against an Independent Researcher named Larry O Hara. O Hara, is a self confessed lefty with contacts in AFA and various Anarchist and Green groups. He has already published several well researched and largely unbiased, accurate articles on the development of Nationalism in Britain. This alone made him in the eyes of Searchlight, a "competitor" and a "threat". But worse still, O Hara challenged Searchlight about its relationship with Britain's Security Services and highlighted instances where this relationship was positively harmful to other left-wing groups that were supposed to be its "Comrades".

O Hara's "exposures" of Searchlight has led to several Anarchist and Marxist groups to condemn Searchlights behaviour. Searchlight retaliated against O Hara, firstly trying to discredit him as a lefty, by alleging he had strong links with members of the Nationalist fraternity. Then they tried to "set him up" by alleging he was working undercover for Nationalists, acting as a "link" with Ulster Loyalists. When this tactic also failed, they then resorted to the "exposure and harassment" gambit, starting by photographing him at his workplace, and then publishing the results along with subtle clues on how to trace both his workplace and his home address. We believe this is a deliberate attempt to entice Nationalists to take some form of action against him.

Don't fall for Searchlight's trap!

We suspect that at some time in the future, O Hara will be attacked by Searchlight supporters. Probably, "C18" or "swastika's", will be daubed nearby in an attempt to blame Nationalists for the attack. This action will be intended as a warning to other prospective "Independent Researchers" not to intrude into Searchlight's "territory".

Future Plans.

We have now appointed a new Director-General, a former military man whose expertise in the field of intelligence gathering, will we hope be reflected in future publications. He will be writing a personal letter to all those "Snipers" that have assisted us in the past, with new suggestions and procedures to improve our intelligence capabilities.

Until Victory !
